

PMI Keystone Chapter, York Branch – 2020-2021 Program Year

PMI Keystone Chapter -York Managed Event Virtual Live Online Meeting December 3, 2020

TIME: 6:30 – 8:30 PMI Volunteer Presentation followed by the Educational Presentation

TOPIC: Proposals to Save the World from an Alien Egg, Students Respond to a Fictional RFP

PRESENTATION SUMMARY: Over the course of the semester, the students have been preparing the proposal and project management documentation to respond to a fictional RFP from the Central Pennsylvania Fortified Interstellar-haZard Zone (FIZZ). A Giant Alien Germinator (Purple Egg from Outerspace) is hovering over the Grumbacher athletic field at the York College of Pennsylvania. The students have formed companies specializing in superheroes for hire and are bidding on the Central Penn FIZZ RFP to neutralize the threat against the community. Four teams of students will present their proposals to save the world.

PRESENTER: Dr. Tamara Schwartz’s Project Management Class of Fall 2020

Tamara Schwartz, Lieutenant Colonel, United States Air Force (retired), DBA

Dr. Tamara Schwartz is an Associate Professor of Business Administration and Cybersecurity at York College of Pennsylvania, an independent consultant, a retired Air Force Officer, and recognized innovator with over 20 years of National Security experience. Tamara spent 20 years as an Air Force Program Manager, serving, in her last assignment, as the Chief Technology Officer for Air Force Enterprise Networking, where her thought leadership informed the design of various command centers supporting Joint Space, Cyber, and Global Strategic Operations as well as the National Military Command Center. Her work at the US Embassy in Amman, Jordan earned her the 2011 Information Operations Officer of the Year and an Honorable Mention for the 2011 Massachusetts Veteran of the Year. Comfortable with ambiguity and the complexity of today's information driven organizations, Tamara is known for her game-changing, collaborative strategies to drive technological, cultural and process innovation. She has a Doctor of Business Administration from the Fox School of Business, Temple University. Her research specialties include ethical AI, the Dynamic Cyber-Based View of the Firm, and the dynamics of information warfare.
